1. In April 1951, several guns were observed in a barracks installation, on the southeastern perimeter of Vysoke Myto (O 50/N 08). A tank unit which had been transferred to Milovice (O 51/G 00) in 1949 was formerly in the installation. The guns were about 70 mm and were equipped with two rubber-tired wheels and towed by trucks. They were first observed when they arrived at Vysoke Myto in the fall of 1950. *
2. Personnel of an infantry unit, who carried rifles, submachine guns, and light machine guns when marching, were quartered in another barracks installation in the northwestern sector of the town, several hundred meters southeast of the railroad station. **

25X1X * [REDACTED] Comment. A previous report stated that two barracks installations, one occupied by an infantry unit, are on the southwestern perimeter of the town of Vysoke Myto, where elements of the 23d Tank Brigade had been stationed prior to the fall of 1948. See MGL-14307

25X1X  [REDACTED] Comment. According to other sources, an air force unit was in a barracks installation near the railroad station. See MGL-14307
